96TH YEAR

GETTYSBURG, PA., SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1914

NO. 47

JULY 4TH CELEBRATION

ONE OF THE FINEST LOCAL PARADES EVER HELD

Closing Most Appropriately in the Square With Stirling Speeches.

The Fourth of July celebration last Saturday proved one of the finest local events ever held. It was successful from every point of view, even in the noise the small boy and big boy and the fire cracker made in the Square during the closing exercises. The celebration was planned by the patriotic orders of the town, Sons of Veterans, P. O. S. of A. and the O. of I. A., and all who had a hand in the event deserve praise and commendation. In any future effort to have a safe and same celebration such as the one so successfully held, the town authorities should see to it that the safety and safety should be promoted with suppression of the noise and the fire works, the very things the celebration was intended to get rid of and which flourished in very large degree this year. The only way to suppress the danger will be to show the dealers in same that they can make as much or more profit in some other way than by powder and noise devices.

The parade formed as outlined in our last issue, being led by Wm. McG. Tawney as chief marshal with his aides, Morris Stansbury, C. B. Hoffman, John F. Walter and Luther McDonnell. The Citizens Band preceded the divisions made up of the speakers, Burgess, councilmen, and delegation of veterans from Corporal Skelly Post No. 9. The Bendersville P. O. S. of A. Band led the Gettysburg Fire Department in full dress uniform, followed by the engine and hook and ladder truck. The New Oxford Camp P. O. S. of A. was next in line. The Boys' Drum Corps of Gettysburg in white uniforms preceded the local patriotic organizations, presenting a fine appearance in a garb specially prepared for the occasion, white hats with red bands, white shirts and trousers and blue neckties.

The assistant marshalls and aides in the parade were C. C. Bream, W. I. Oyler, Edward Oyler, Edward S. Swone, Sandee Kitzmiller, George Taylor, Earl Deardorff and E. E. Hunchison.

The $5 prize for the best decorated automobile was won by the Betsy Ross Council, Daughters of Liberty. Only two cars were entered for the prize and there was no question as to the winner from moment car appeared. The Tawney auto truck was richly decorated with flags and bunting. Betsy Ross represented by Mrs. Wm. Wavel was in act of making the first American flag, surrounded by a number of ladies of the local council in colonial attire.

The route of the parade followed the line mentioned in our last issue and terminated in the Square, where a great throng of our town people gathered. The decorated truck of Marshall Tawney was used as a platform. Prof. J. Louis Sowers as master of ceremonies opened the meeting. Rev. R. S. Oyler made the prayer. Dr. J. A. Himes read the Declaration of Independence and then came the addresses.

PROF. C. F. SANDERS' SPEECH.

OUR FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES: Fellow Countrymen: This is the birthday anniversary of our Republic. We have kept holiday and we are met here to celebrate. The committee to whom we are indebted for the arrangements for these exercises represent patriotic, fraternal orders. We have witnessed a parade of the streets accompanied with the strains of martial music and patriotic airs. The flag of our country was borne at the head of the ranks and is much in evidence throughout our streets. One common theme seems to inspire everything today, and that theme seems to be "Our Country."

We have just listened to the reading of that immortal document, the Declaration of Independence, which is the definition of the phrase "Our Country," as it thrills the patriotic heart to-day. It is my purpose to direct attention to that definition in order, if possible, to give something of real meaning to this celebration.

My subject, as announced, is Our Fundamental Principles. And I wish to say first of all, that our country stands for principles, not territory. Those stars and stripes are respected throughout the world for the fundamental principles of our government. Samuel Adams, Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, George Washington, and the whole line of the patriotic fathers are remembered for their principles. Let us not forget this fact. It is so true that we seem to take it for granted and lose it by the very indifference with which we do so.

Gentlemen of the patriotic orders, hear and answer in your own heart, what is it that inspires our patriotism? Children of our schools, upon what basis are you being taught to love our flag? Citizens of whatever rank or station, tell me, are you proud of your country? If you answer yes, then tell me what makes you so? Is it our vast territorial expanse? We are out-classed by Great Britain and Russia. Is it our boundless resources? They find no place in our Declaration. Liberty, Equality, Rights, these great words sound the note of our glory. Principles, not things, constitute a country. The glory of Greece was her art, her

Rome was her jurisprudence and her institutions. She neither rose nor fell on account of territory or material resources. It was her principles that gave her greatness and it was her neglect of them that sent her to ruin and decay. And it is this thought I should like to write into the minds of both the aged and the young: great principles greatly loved make countries great, ignobly spurned they bring them ruin.

The historian Guizot once asked James Russell Lowell how long he thought our Republic would endure, and received the reply: "So long as the ideas of the men who founded it continue dominant." You may regard these words as a philosophic deduction from the past or a principle of prophecy. As you choose. But you cannot choose on the point of the relation of national life to principle.

"Great empires and little minds," said Sir Edmund Burke, "go ill together." Athens fell because she had become an Athens of little minds. Great minds conceived and wrote the Declaration of Independence. The principle of Liberty, Equality and Justice which constitute the warp and woof of that document were first elaborated in the palmy days of the Golden Age of Greece. The age of Pericles, of Demosthenes, Socrates, Plato and Aristotle. With the disintegration of the Greek civilization they were lost under the rubbish of the imperial policies of world-monarchs to be revived and restored by the Pilgrim Fathers and the French Huguenots and their confederates. "These are the first colonists," says Lowell, "in human history who went out not to seek gold, but to seek God." Next to the fugitives whom Moses led out of Egypt, the little shipload of outcasts who landed at Plymouth two and a half centuries ago are destined to influence the future of the world.

I have referred to the Declaration of Independence. Liberty, Equality and Justice. These are the expression of two complementary motive forces deeply imbedded in the human soul. They are conscience and courage. These are the fundamental principles I had in mind in formulating my theme. It is upon them that our Declaration rests, out of them it was born. Wherever these are yonder flag can wave with honor, where they are absent, it is disgraced. Conscience without courage may produce pious slavery; courage without conscience produces arrogant tyranny. Our fathers were the personification of the two combined. And our country will endure, to repeat the words of Lowell, "So long as the ideas of the men who founded it continue to be dominant."

Young men and young women, no matter what your station, let me call you to the judgment bar of your own heart to answer the question to what extent are conscience and courage dominating your lives? What promise is there for the stability of our glorious country in the principles which actuate you? What do you think of the rank and file of our citizenship as you see its portrait in the daily press? What have you to say for yourself? There is much prating about wealth and social position and material success. The revolutionary fathers made none of these fundamental. I should like to send throughout all our millions of population a line from a letter of Franklin to Dr. Price in 1780: "We make daily great improvements in natural, there is one I wish to see in moral philosophy." He goes on to speak of the elimination of war. I should like to simply call our nation's attention to the moral in contrast with the physical and material. The standards of our patriot fathers were moral, not material; conscience, not gold inspired their courage and produced their virtues. In the legislative hall, at the ballot box, in the field and at the counter, conscience reigned.

I am fully aware that moral philosophizing is not generally popular. But I am quite as certain that its unpopularity is the first real sign of its importance. Lowell has splendidly satirized the smooth, self-education that always avoids the things that require healing. I must quote him:

"I'm willin' a man should go tellable strong
Agin' wrong in the abstract, fer the kind o' wrong
Is others unpopular an' better fits pityed.
Because it's a crime no one never committed;
But he musn't be hard on parickler sins.
Cuz then he'll be kickin' the people's own shins."

If I happen to be kickin' anybody's shins to-day, it is for my country's sake. Gentlemen of the patriotic orders, where do you stand on the great moral issues confronting our nation to-day? It was in the day of Athenian glory that Demosthenes pleaded, "Ye gods, inspire these men with a better mind and heart." And on what points did he want a letter "mind and heart." On the point of their indulgences, luxuries, lust and bribes. Gentlemen, our country stands disgraced before the world for these sins. And we must purge it or pay the penalty.

We must learn to put more money into character and perchance less into steel; we must build greater schools and foster the institutions that purify conscience and develop courage. The sneer against puritanism is a sign of the curse that is upon us. I am far from pleading for anything like sentimentality or cheap fanaticism of a religious or whatever sort. I am holiday. Neglect them and you disgrace your flag.

"Where'er a single slave doth pine,
Where'er one man may help another—
Thank God for such a birthright, brother—
That spot of earth is thine and mine!
There is the true man's birthplace
grand:
His is a world-wide fatherland!"

—Lowell.

In this connection of our fundamental principles of conscience and courage I would pray as did a patriot of old, "May God be with us as He was with our fathers."

Dr. J. A. Singmaster concluded with a brief speech in which he commended the celebration of the birthday of the nation as planned and carried out. There was no more appropriate State in the country than Pennsylvania in which such celebrations should be held, the State of Valley Forge and Brandywine, the State of Independence Hall and where the first Congress was held. And there was no more appropriate community in the State than Gettysburg in which to hold such celebrations, the place where the union was preserved and the greater liberties of a nation wrought out in a gigantic struggle. Dr. Singmaster brought the celebration to a close with a call for three cheers which were given with a vim.

School News.

The Gettysburg School Board organized for the year at their regular meeting on last Thursday evening. Robert C. Miller resigning as secretary Milton R. Remmel was elected secretary and salary fixed at $50 per year. The amount paid for the past year, I. L. Taylor was re-elected treasurer and his office of last year was renewed, to serve without salary. A quantity of routine business was disposed of. The time for the opening of the schools was fixed for Monday, August 31, for a term of nine months, and compulsory attendance to begin with second month for eight months.

It was decided that manual training would be taught to the boys in the Freshman and Sophomore classes in High School only. During the past two years the boys of the eighth grade have been getting one period a week but this was deemed insufficient for any practical value, and it was found to be impossible to arrange a schedule of High School work to give them more time.

After discussing the needs of the Home Art Department the secretary was instructed to write Mr. King, superintendent of that work, asking him to visit Gettysburg at his earliest convenience for the purpose of suggesting an arrangement that will be acceptable to the State Department.

On Monday evening the School Board met Tax Collector Bumbaugh and heard and allowed a number of exonerations and when this was finished it was found that the collection of school funds for 1913 was in an excellent shape, only a few hundred dollars unpaid, which the collector believed he could get at an early date. The duplicate for 1914 was placed in his hands.

Two Bad Accidents.

Robert Blocher, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Blocher, narrowly escaped fatal injuries on Saturday morning when he fell while attempting to board the front platform of a car on the R.R. W. M. train. He was thrown under the car and was only saved from being crushed by quick action of Clinton Beard who pulled him from the track before the rear wheels of the car touched him. Aside from ugly lacerations of the face and knees he was not seriously injured.

William Gilbert, while working with a piece of machinery at the Gettysburg Foundry, on Wednesday morning met with a painful accident in which the nail and part of the index finger of his left hand were completely severed from his hand.

TO ABATE TIBER NUISANCE

ELECTRIC LIGHT CONTRACT UNDER CONSIDERATION

After a Dramatic Climax Troubles Subside in a Proposed Effort at an Understanding.

The Town Council of Gettysburg held their regular July meeting on Tuesday evening with a full attendance of the town fathers, President of Council Butt, Councilmen Dougherty and Beard from First Ward, Keith, Gilbert and Stock from Second Ward, Trostle, Bushman and Baughman from the Third Ward.

The business was put through with dispatch according to a system that eats up the routine work, one thing at a time and that thing until disposed of. Apparently decks were cleared for the dramatic climax of the consideration of the contract for lighting and there were periods in which there was no indication that the audience was going to sleep.

In clearing the decks, minutes were read and approved, communications read, also reports. Among later was the one relative to suggestions of Burgess Raymond for regulation of speed of automobiles, etc. The committee reported that the Act of 1913 fully covered all suggestions made as to the regulation of automobile traffic and that certain suggestions could not be carried out as being contrary to that Act. The proposal to regulate traffic in the Square with travel to the right, etc., was approved by committee. A draft of an ordinance for such regulations in Square was presented but failed of adoption. Motion carried that the Highway Committee be directed to place a proper sign under Act of 1913 at proper place in the town and crossings so that speed can be controlled.

Wm Henry repeated his request for pavement on south side of Hanover street where there are mud walks, of about 100 feet. He said he had been told that lot owners were delaying until too late to make and this would result in another winter of mud. The Highway Committee was instructed to have property owners make pavement.

F. M. Frommeyer, S. M. Hartzell, A. J. Harman and M. F. Williams asked that hawking licenses paid in 1912 be credited on licenses for this year. It appeared that there was a failure to collect hawking licenses in 1912 except from about 23 persons and after new ordinance of 1913 no further attempt was made to collect what was due under old ordinance. The point was raised whether the borough could legally repay, and borough attorney was asked to submit his opinion at next meeting of council.

The curp water cut off at property of Murray Sheads on Middle street had been covered up in making cement curb and borough was asked to uncover the cut off, and a motion was carried to that effect. If cut off was found in curb or gutter covered by them, the expense of opening should be paid by borough, if in pavement, by Mr. Sheads.

Dr. Stewart for the Board of Health condemned the condition of Tiber by reason of sewers emptying in it. Protest of Rev. Moser and John M. Blocher were heard. Last year residents of Carlisle street were asked by State to go into the sanitary sewer and did so and protested against suffering from sewer nuisances other parts of the town were responsible for, when they at much expense made improvements which made it impossible for that immediate street to be the cause of. The exact cause of the trouble has not been located, but certain dwellings are evidently maintaining connections with the old drainway in the Tiber and have not entered the sanitary sewer. Every property years ago was ordered to connect with the sanitary sewer and it might be well for the borough to find out what properties are not in so that they could be held responsible for such a condition as now imperils the lives of the residents of Carlisle street. Councilmen freely admitted the seriousness of the situation by stating that unless immediately abated there was personal risk of councilmen being held criminally liable for the nuisance. The Sewer and Highway Committees were ordered to make immediate repairs in the effort to correct permanently the condition. It was said that the sewer would be opened and all obstructions removed and if any property was found draining into it, such connection would be plugged shut.

A letter was read from Hon. D. P. McPherson, attorney for Miss Lizzie Mertz, asking for settlement of damages of broken arm in falling over grade marker at Franklin and West streets. Keith and Gilbert were appointed a committee to take up matter with Mr. McPherson.

The Highway Committee was instructed to make curb on south side of West Middle street between Washington and Franklin streets.

Borough Attorney Swope was directed to ascertain cost of opening Water street east of Stratton street, and also to report status of Railroad street.

The tax duplicate for 1914 was reported ready for tax collector, general taxes $10,729.21; special $2,557.68.

THE CLIMAX.

The climax of meeting, dramatic

To the Town Council of the Borough of Gettysburg:

The Light Committee respectfully reports as follows:

That after advertising for bids, and submitting to all applicants three forms on which to make their bids, in which forms it was stipulated that the Borough would furnish its own lamps, the Gas Company informed us that it was not in a position to take the contract without going to considerable expense and the Gettysburg Light Company submitted three bids, none of which were in accordance with the form given, and all of which the Light Committee rejected as being impracticable.

Finding that the Gettysburg Light Company was not disposed to make a fair bid, and made every effort to complicate matters in order to secure an extortionate price from the Borough, the same as in the old contract, the Light Committee made written demand upon the Light Company to give it a price, per kilowatt hour, for the current alone, which the Gettysburg Light Company refused to do, saying that it was impracticable for them to do so as they owned the poles and wire. The Light Committee is unable to see how the Gettysburg Light Company could furnish the current if it did not have the poles and wire, and we have never heard of electric current being peddled around the streets of the Borough in baskets.

Under instructions from the Light Committee, the Borough Attorney has filed complaint against the Gettysburg Light Company, with the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of compelling the Light Company to give the Borough a proper price for current per kilowatt hour, as from all information we have been able to secure from Electrical Engineers, this is the only way to deal with such corporations.

In the event of a proper price not being secured from the Gettysburg Light Company, we would recommend that the Light Committee be instructed to secure estimates of the cost of building its own light plant and make report to the Council at an early date.

The representatives of the Light Company asserted that under the advertisement for a light contract no intelligent bid could be submitted and that bids for lighting were submitted which gave the town a better contract than during the past five years and that the report of the committee was unfair from certain points of view. During the discussion a lot of electrical technical talk was let loose by both parties and the drift seemed to be toward a point where all would be asking where they were at, when Councilman Keith proposed that the Light Committee and Light Company try to get rid of misunderstandings and reach an understanding and submit propositions to Council in two ways, on a flat rate basis as at present and on a kilowatt rate.

The history of the light contract would show a tendency to produce choppy seas and that of Tuesday evening kept up the record. History would likely tell that both parties have contributed to that result. President of Council Butt remarked the other evening that it ought to be possible for borough and light company to come to fair understanding by which the company would not only get cost for its light but a reasonable profit. Ten years ago the contract for the arc lights was $60 a light. Five years ago, facing a scare of another proposed light company engineered in the town to get cheaper light, the present company dropped to $49.50 for each of the 36 arc lights per year and for the 51-60 candle tungsten lights $12.97 a light. The light at these figures has been costing the town nearly $3000 a year. Light is the best policeman and a protection but the total for light in a borough where the general taxes will not amount to over $10,000 a year, looks like a big amount devoted to one purpose.

The Light Committee went at finding a way to get a reduced light bill and if this is possible it should be done, yet if the result should be to get the borough into a hole of unknown dimensions or a situation likely to be resolved in favor of the company, the public will pay the piper.

There seems to have been a misunderstanding of language that could have been avoided. The bid asked for "70 watt per candle power" and the Light Company said the quantity of light so asked for would be worth $400,000, yet the Light Committee contended that they meant electrically speaking 70 watt per 100 candle power, and a bill of about $4,000. Evidently both understood what was meant but each adopted an interpretation to suit their own argument instead of using that energy to understand each other and get together.

The bid asked for 80-100 and 250 candle power lights and the bid on a moonlight schedule was $11.13 for 80, $12.25 for 100 and $28.16 for 250. On a moonlight plus dark cloudy night schedule the bid was $14.56 for 80, $17.25 for 100, and $42.75 for 250, and on an all night schedule every night 100 was $20.95 for 80, $28.66 for 100, and $58.28 for 250.

The Light Committee wanted the Commercial Kilowatt rate and borough to furnish lamps and renewals. The Light Company contended that the commercial rate given stores could not be given the town for an additional service of pole, wire line, fixtures, etc., had to be maintained separately for the borough light and that the borough received greater part of light when it cost the plant the greatest outlay to produce. To allow the borough to furnish lamps and its em-

Dr. Wm. A. Granville, president of College has received notice that the Marine Officers' School will come to Gettysburg this summer. A group of ten men are expected to arrive on Saturday and second group of twenty men will arrive on Saturday of next week, July 18. They will remain here until August 29. They will occupy rooms on the second and third floors of Old Dorm. It is expected that several of the officers in charge will come with their wives and families.

A feature of the work this year will be the study of the contour maps of the battlefield these being considered the most perfect maps of the kind now in possession of the United States Government. Last year trips were made across the field. The officers under instruction made maps of the field and these were then compared with the government maps.

The work is intended to prepare the officers for actual service in the movements of troops and the carrying on of military campaigns. The men who which adjoins it, were saved.

It appears that when Miss Cromer left the building she did not notice any fire. About half an hour afterwards flames were seen to issue from the rear of the building.

Fortunately, a number of the neighbors were able to reply promptly to the alarm and by hard work they succeeded in extinguishing the flames. A part of the chicken house was burned and some of the weatherboarding of the barn was consumed. The hay in the barn had started to burn. Water was carried in buckets from the well, and when the fire was extinguished the well was found to be almost dry.

NEW DIRECTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY

Our representatives wear this badge.

The publishers of the old reliable FARM JOURNAL of Philadelphia, are preparing to publish the Illustrated DIRECTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY, giving the name, post-office, rural route, and telephone connection of every farmer, business man, and household in the county, all arranged alphabetically, and a classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY, including all business houses in the county, arranged under the proper headings.

With the Directory is given a complete ROAD MAP of the county, with every road NUMBERED to show the exact location of each farm, as given in the Directory.

This Directory will contain many interesting PICTURES of well-known farmers and business men of the county, fine farms, thoroughbred stock, churches and public institutions, schools and pupils, etc.

The names and necessary information are being secured by PERSONAL CANVASSING of all houses and business places, and of the 3752 farms in the county. This Directory and Road Map are so useful and interesting that from our experience in other counties we can guarantee that the Directory will go into at least TWO THOUSAND HOMES OF ADAMS COUNTY, where it will be constantly used by farmers and business men for the next five years.

The Farm Journal Directories are an immense improvement over directories, containing what most publications do not give. Beside all the usual information, they give the names, addresses, telephone connection, and other important information about FARMERS, secured by PERSONAL CANVASSING from each farmer himself. This canvass of country districts is so costly that most directory publishers cannot afford to make it, and ordinary lists of farmers published are in nearly all cases merely copied from official lists.

The classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY includes every business house in the county, whether in city or country. In other directories the names of houses in cities and large towns only are given.

These features with the ROAD Map, makes the Farm Journal Directory an indispensable hand-book for every live farmer and business man in the county.

If you are not sure that correct information about your farm or business has been given to one of our canvassers, please send it direct to our main office.

M'CORMICK'S POWER TO DO THINGS.

In Vance C. McCormick the Democratic party has presented a candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania so peculiarly equipped for the special duties of that office as to make it almost certain that the independent citizens of the state will make him their choice, regardless of party lines.

A business man, handling with remarkable ease and effectiveness large private interests of his own and of others; a banker, familiar with financial matters and with the details of an efficiently managed financial institution; a farmer, whose passion is for progressive methods that are at the same time practical and simple and that will make possible and profitable the increasing production of the best stock and the best fruits of the soil; a public-spirited citizen who employs his time and his money for the benefit of his town and commonwealth, and not merely for his own personal enjoyment; a former mayor of Harrisburg, who displayed such remarkable administrative talent that Harrisburg became the best-governed city of its size in the state, and started upon an era of improvement that is the envy of all its rivals; a newspaper man whose paper has, from the first day of his ownership, been a crusader for righteousness and progress; a political leader who has fought always for decency, independence and progress; an employer of labor who pays his men more than the union scale and makes the conditions of their labor better than the law requires or the men demand.

It is not often that one man—much less a candidate for election, combines such qualifications for high office. Yet even Mr. McCormick's opponents concede the truth of every one of these assertions.

Pennsylvania Democrats are fortunate in their candidate, and the state is fortunate in the probability of his success.

COLLEGE PLAYERS IN "TWELFTH NIGHT"

The Drama at Chautauqua.

Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" will be played here by the College Players Chautauqua Week, July 15 to 21. The rare old comedy will be played with all the simplicity of the age for which it was written. No scenery will be used, except the ordinary soft colorings of the Chautauqua tent.

The College Players, is a company of young college people selected for their natural talent, and coached by Miriam Lee Early-Lippincott, a famous coach for spectacular campus plays. Ten people make up the company which will play at eighty Chautauquas this summer.

The presentation of drama is only one side of Chautauqua. During Chautauqua Week there will be twelve lectures, twelve concerts, and seven other events classified for want of a better term, as entertainments. The College Players come under the latter classification, and yet their performances cannot be justly called pure entertainments. Shakespearean plays and their interpretation are a part of every education.

The Bell of 1776.

(By J. Howard Wert.)

O, bell that rang for every land,
And told of the birth of a nation:
The herald, thou, of an era grand,
The prophet of Freedom's creation.

Each patriot's thoughts, this natal day,
Will bridge the fleeting years;
And glance back the stormy way
When signs of blood and tears

Were the stern price our fathers gave
To found thy declaration—
When hearts and hands were joined
To save
The feeble, struggling nation.

And now, from that bold and hardy land
Has grown a Nation strong—
The symbol of freedom to every land;
And they worship thee in song.

O, Bell of hope! O, scared bell!
No utterance so sublime
Has e'er from Mundane prophet fell
Since sprang the birth of time.

Father above, preserve this land,
And may it always be,
Beneath the guidance of Thy Hand,
Home of the brave and free.

WHY WEAK LUNGS?

The toll of tuberculosis is claiming more than 350 victims every day in the United States, yet few realize their grave condition until the critical period arrives.

Overwork, worry, weakness after sickness, catarrh, bronchitis, tender throats—all exert the weakening influence that invites consumption.

To guard against consumption, thousands of people take Scott's Emulsion after meals because its rich medicinal nourishment strengthens the lungs, puts vigor in the blood, and upbuilds strength to resist tuberculosis. Scott's Emulsion is nature's strength-builder. Refuse substitutes.

WOMEN'S WOES

Gettysburg Women Are Finding Relief at Last—

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Keeping the kidneys well has spared thousands of women much misery. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Annie Flaherty, 311 Washington St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills during the past several years and am willing to tell of my experience for the benefit of other kidney sufferers. I had weak kidneys for a long time and was also subject to headaches and backaches. Doan's Kidney Pills have removed all these troubles. There is no better remedy for the kidneys."

COMPLAINS OF A PAIN AND IS DEAD IN AN HOUR

Fell Down Stairway and Receives Injuries Which Cause Death.

MARY C. PROSSER, wife of Charles Prosser, Jr., of Hanover, died very suddenly last Tuesday night about 12 o'clock of heart trouble. Mrs. Prosser retired in her usual health and rested well up to about 11 o'clock, when she complained of a severe pain in her left side. The family physician was called but Mrs. Prosser died shortly after his arrival. The doctor pronounced her death due to heart trouble. Her age was 58 years, 10 months and 7 days. Mrs. Prosser was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Coulson, of Latimore, and was united in marriage to Mr. Prosser, Dec. 13, 1877. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, James G. at home, and Charles A. of Cohasset, Cal., and three grandchildren, also by two sisters and three brothers. Mrs. Sarah Nagle of Leaville, Eliza Fickle of Hunter's Run, John and William Coulson of Hanover and Frank Coulson of York Springs. The funeral will be held this Saturday morning with short services at her home after which the funeral party will go to Chestnut Grove Church in Latimore township, where further services will be held and interment will be made in the family lot at Chestnut Grove Cemetery. The Rev. W. I. Redey will officiate.

MRS. SARAH ELLEN PETRY, widow of the late William Petry of near Bendersville, died at the Harrisburg Hospital from injuries received on June 10 by a fall down a stairway. Mrs. Petry went to the cellarway after midnight in the dark, for a bottle of medicine, and on her return made a misstep and fell to the foot of the stairs striking her head against the wall. Her skull was fractured and she was otherwise injured. Mrs. Petry was a daughter of Samuel and Margaret Cook deceased, a member of the Society of Friends, a life long resident of Bendersville and vicinity. She was a kind neighbor and spent most of her life caring for invalids in her family. Mrs. Petry was 72 years of age and is survived by one son and two daughters, George Petry, Mrs. Duffield Rudy, both of Harrisburg, and Mrs. Cornelius Toner of Mt. Tabor. Funeral services were held at the home of her niece, Mrs. Thomas Mauk in Harrisburg on last Saturday evening, and at the Friends' Meeting House, Flora Dale, Sunday where interment was made.

MRS. RACHEL BANGE, widow of Henry Bange, an aged lady of Hanover, after fifteen months' illness passed away on Monday, July 6, at the advanced age of 87 years, 1 month and 4 days. She was born in Maryland, a daughter of Jacob and Sarah Wideman. With the exception of several years when with her husband they resided in Littlestown, her entire married life was spent in Hanover. The funeral was held on Thursday with interment in the Hanover Cemetery. She leaves four children, Adam Bange and Miss Sarah E. Bange at home, Robert R. Bange and Howard M. Bange of Hanover. One sister, Mrs. Susan Rider of Three Springs, Huntingdon county, also survives.

Woman Suffrage Organization.

Miss Howard, the State Suffrage Organizer, was greatly pleased with the sentiment found in Adams county in favor of woman suffrage and expressed the opinion that the time was ripe for an organization in the county. On Thursday afternoon, July 2, a public meeting was held in the Court House to consider the advisability of an organization and it was determined that the movement should be undertaken and vigorously advertised and pushed.

State Chairman Miss Hannah Patterson of Harrisburg, having suggested a choice of County Chairman of the Suffrage Cause, it was stated that party named was willing to serve if those interested in the work were entirely satisfied for her to do so. By a unanimous rising vote all present ratified the appointment and with the approval of all present the following permanent organization was effected:

Mrs. Wm. Arch McClean, of Gettysburg, County Chairman.

Mrs. George Seaks, of New Oxford, Vice County Chairman.

Mrs. W. C. Sheely, of Gettysburg, Secretary and Treasurer.

Miss Lydia E. Hartman, of Littlestown, Chairman of County Enrollment Committee.

Mrs. Harvey Neely, of York Springs, Chairman of County Literature Committee.

Mrs. George Seaks, of New Oxford, Chairman of County Propaganda Committee.

Mrs. John D. Keith, of Gettysburg, Chairman of County Finance Committee.

The county was divided into seven districts and the work in each district to be in the hands of a district chairman, who will endeavor to secure an organization in each election district and each district or election district so formed will have their respective chairman and enrollment, literature, propaganda and finance committees. The districts are arranged as follows:

First District, Franklin, Highland, Hamilton, Liberty and Freedom townships, and Fairfield. Mrs. Wm. Robert, Cashtown, District Chairman.

Second District, Menallen, Butler, Tyrone and Strawn townships, Aradaville, Bendersville and Biglerville. Mrs. Aaron I. Weidner of Aradaville, District Chairman.

Third District, Huntington and Latimore townships and York Springs. Mrs. J. Harvey Neely, of York Springs, District Chairman.

Fourth District, Oxford, Mt. Pleasant and Conewago townships, New Oxford and McSherrystown. Mrs. Geo. Seaks of New Oxford, District Chairman.

Fifth District, Berwick, Hamilton and Reading townships, Abbottstown and East Berlin. Mrs. Milton Hoffer, District Chairman.

Sixth District, Union, Germany and Mt. Joy townships and Littlestown. Miss Lydia E. Hartman, District Chairman.

Seventh District, Cumberland township and Gettysburg. Mrs. D. J. Forney, District Chairman.

Talking about votes for women few realize that in ten States women are voting for president and to send representatives to Congress. Mrs. Mark Kurtz of Idaho was a recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Eckert, Springs Ave., and while here gave an interesting picture of conditions in her State. She said she had voted for three presidents and had voted every time she was in the State for congressman, all State and local officers. She had lived in Idaho for eighteen years with the rights of suffrage and when in the State had never failed to go to both primary and elections. No Idaho women neglected their homes in the exercise of these rights. There were no radical changes. Many better laws had been enacted. The offices were largely held by men, only an occasional one by a woman, and that usually one pertaining to the schools. The great advantage had been that the government was in the hands of a better class of men. Before a candidate announced it was usual for some one to canvass leaders among the women asking whether the women would support him, and men who were of notoriously bad characters, never got the support of the women with the result that few of that kind ever ran for office, and when they did were defeated.

When the women of ten States are helping to elect the president and sending representatives to congress, surely every Pennsylvanian will determine that the women of the Keystone State are entitled to rights equal of any enjoyed in any other of the States of the Union.

Police Activities.

County Detective Wilson arrested Stanley Waddle as a train rider and on Monday he received 20 days in jail from Squire Hill. First occasion he has done time for free riding of 2,000 miles.

Chief of Police Emmons captured three hoboes who were given employment in sweeping the Square.

On Wednesday evening Chief Emmons picked up George Canolo of Connecticut for fast driving. He admitted his car could go 90 miles an hour and those who saw car go through Square believed it was going more than half that speed. A broken tire was given as the excuse. The fine of $10 and costs imposed by Squire Harnish was paid.

Robert Simpson and Patrick Moran, two tramps, intoxicated started begging on Saturday and they were lodged with Sheriff Thompson.

Charles Miller was arrested for assault and battery on Mrs. Laura Tyler, his mother-in-law.

Automobile State Funds Free.

Judge McCarrell in the Dauphin county court refused to make a supersedeas the appeal of Auditor General Powell and State Treasurer Young to the Supreme Court in the automobile license case. The effect of a supersedeas would have been to stop all chance of the state highway commissioner getting the use of any of the million dollars accumulated from licenses until the Supreme Court passed upon the questions raised.

The court says that an imperative necessity apparently exists for immediate action on the part of the highway commissioner to repair the roads and that if the supersedeas were granted he would not be able to do anything for some time. In the opinion of the court harm may result to the public by granting a supersedeas and the opinion says that the judge is unable to see how any harm can come to the officials either officially or personally by reason of its refusal.

State Liable for State Road Bridges

An interesting decision was made recently by Judge Orris in Centre county and Judge Orris ranks at the top in legal knowledge and learning. It was sought to mandamus the county commissioners to erect a county bridge on a condemned turnpike subsequently taken over by the State as a state highway and it was held that the highways taken over by the State shall be maintained exclusively by the State, which included bridges and the county could not be compelled to erect bridge.

This decision applies to the Brush Run bridge on York turnpike. The pike was abandoned and then taken over by the State. The Brush Run bridge is in a dangerous condition, a daily menace and the State Highway Department should look upon it as a duty due those who travel by State roads to rebuild that bridge.

West Virginia Dry July 1.

West Virginia entered the column of prohibition States July 1, and its residents are trying to adjust themselves to the new conditions.

"For rent" signs in the windows of nearly 600 buildings throughout the State, where intoxicating liquors were sold in abundance, give mute evidence of the change wrought by the new law. Not a liquor sign or advertisement can be seen in the important cities and towns. All the marks incident to licensed liquor dealers have disappeared as if by magic. Voted out of business by a majority of nearly 100,000, the saloonists took the inevitable good-naturedly. Many sold their business and left the State. Some have turned to other lines of trade. Still others have retired from active pursuits. Many had closed their doors. Only a few kept open until the last minute. The transition was orderly.

Prohibition in West Virginia will put out of business more than 500 saloons, close 12 breweries and one distillery.

The law as it stands will permit the sale of spirituous liquors only for medicinal, mechanical and sacramental purposes. The legal provisions governing such sales are most exacting and the penalties severe. They will make repeated illegal selling felonious, with confinement in the penitentiary, as the penalty.

The new law will extend not only to the individual, but to the club where intoxicants are served in any manner. It will require the closest record and tabulation of interstate shipments of liquors, and it will cut out all soliciting and all newspaper, bill board and circular advertising of liquor in the State. It is the most sweeping in its provisions of any State-wide liquor enactment ever written on the statute books of a commonwealth.

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the ever-varying days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by the sunstroke as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic.—say, a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep, and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

The Democratic party of the State of Pennsylvania is committed to woman suffrage in no uncertain language. The platform adopted at Harrisburg on June 3 declared "The denial of the right of suffrage of the women of our State has aroused a deep feeling that they are deprived of those equal rights to which as American citizens we believe they are entitled. We favor an immediate referendum on this important question." The Democracy of Adams county recently adopted resolutions affirming "the declaration of principles so set forth by the Democratic State Committee at its meeting in Harrisburg June 3." Woman suffrage is thus entitled to the fullest support of the Democratic voters of the county, having been adopted as a party principle both in State and county, and recognized as a right of citizenship to which women are entitled. This means politically at the present time that the legislative having voted once upon a constitutional amendment to give women the suffrage should vote a second time at the coming session for the same amendment so that the question will be sent to the voters to be finally decided by their ballots.

Republican Congressional Muddle.

The "York Gazette" on Wednesday reviewed the Republican congressional situation as follows:

Although it is nearly two months since the primary election, the Republicans of the York-Adams district do not yet know who will be their congressional candidate at the November election. It is just like this:

Of course William Beales of Gettysburg (Billy Beales, they affectionately call him), was nominated mainly because he had no opposition in the Republican party, yet everybody knows Mr. Beales will not have the ghost of a chance of being elected. In fact, no one for a moment ever supposed he had. Therefore the executive committee must get him to withdraw and then they must select somebody to fill the bill who can coax some votes over to the Republican column.

This is the program. It was the program from the very beginning, it is stated. On primary election day Gettysburg people were mildly speculating whom the Republicans would put on their ballots as the real vote getting candidate. John E. Baker of York was spoken of. Then Grier Hersh was under consideration. Something caused opinion to swing around and Hon. Richard E. Cochran was suggested. To this day there has been no agreement, and from present indications it looks as if there will be no agreement.

Why? Simple enough. Beales was merely "honored" with the nomination. The Republican bosses put him on the ticket, having in mind the futility of any effort to win at the coming election. They remembered how Hon. D. F. Lefean went down to defeat in the rising swell of Democratic unification, and they saw no reason to expect anything different next time. Mr. Beales has been a staunch Lefean lieutenant—a man to take orders and carry them out, if it was in the wood. He is a good business man and knows a lot about the drug business, in which he is successful, it is claimed. He also has had some experience as postmaster at Gettysburg—another reward for his service to the dear G. O. P. and the Hon. D. F. Lefean et al. But as for winning votes from a congressional district, that is another story. Beales is not known beyond the confines of his own county except in business circles. The usual run of voters of York county never heard of him. Therefore the leaders conceived that it would be a good thing to take their time and figure out a plan of action that in the intervening months might bring them a little nearer the mark of success.

TOO MUCH PENROSEISM.

Mr. Baker has for some time had the congressional bee in his head, and the knowing ones pointed to him as the logical candidate for the place at this time. But Mr. Baker is a staunch supporter of Penrose. He was one of the promoters of the recent Penrose club in this city. There are many York county Republicans who will not stand for anything that smacks of Penroseism, and they are of the opinion that Penrose and his followers are going to be defeated in November. Thus it came about that Mr. Baker's name was shunted aside as unacceptable just now. Grier Hersh, the York banker, also is some aspirant when it comes to congressional honors. Now Mr. Hersh is a banker and probably knows a lot about the business. He has been a national committeeman, too. It will be remembered that the notorious "Four A" scheme benefitted him a lot in 1912. This success of his at the time gave him reason to think that when York county had a burning anxiety to select a man who would fit the congressional chair to a T he was the individual they were looking for. But alas, there are Republicans who cannot see it in that way, and the suggestion of his name raised a rumpus that caused another quick change of base.

In their dire extremity the men who are trying to work the thing sought solace in the belief that Hon. Richard E. Cochran would make an acceptable candidate. The matter was put up to him, with what success is not stated.

So what are the Republicans to do. Torn to tatters with dissensions over their congressional ticket, with little apparent hope of ever coming together, the outlook for the Republicans is gloomy, to say the least.

From all the foregoing it will be seen that the York-Adams Republicans have little time for anything but attending to their own troubles. As said in the beginning not one of them knows whom he is going to vote for in November.

Straban Township Races.

The crowd at the races of the Great Conewago Trotting Association on July 4 at the course midway between Hunterstown and New Chester was estimated at 1500 people. There were over 600 paid admissions. The track is 700 feet short for the mile and time given in events below was that made over the course 700 feet short of a mile. The track was in good condition. The events proved very interesting and was voted a success by every one. The next racing event has been scheduled for August 1. The result of the races was as follows:

Maj. Fred. Ott Retires.

Major Frederick M. Ott, commander of the second squadron of cavalry of the National Guard, retired July 1, having reached the age of 64. From 1891 to 1910 he was captain of the Governor's Troop. He served in the Spanish War and during the Home-Steak, Hazelton and Shenandoah strikes. Major Ott is county solicitor for Dauphin county. Major Ott graduated at Gettysburg College in 1870, in the class with Professor John A. Himes, John L. Hill, Esq., John L. Rendell, Esq., Dr. John M. Hande, Esq., Rev. M. Reimannsdorfer and others, which seems to be a class of "Johnnies."

TO ABATE TIBER NUISANCE.

The return made by the Light Committee to the Public Service Commission without the authority of the Town Council and the threat of a municipal plant do not look helpful ways to a solution of the difficulty in the interests of the people. The chances would seem to be all in favor of the company if the Public Service Commission is allowed to decide the question. They will go into all the questions of a reasonable rate, additional servitude of a purely municipal line over a commercial line. It can be depended upon that they will allow a profitable rate and it seems easy to predict that the cost to the borough will be more than for both parties to get together and amicably agree upon a contract.

The threat of a municipal plant is not helpful. The Act of 1913 requires that "upon the approval of the commission first had and obtained and not otherwise, it shall be lawful for a municipality to begin such a plant and that such approval shall be given only if and when the said commission shall find or determine the approval is necessary for the service, accommodation, convenience or safety of the public." In other words wasteful competition is prevented and before consent would be given for a municipal plant the commission would fix rate and give an opportunity to the Light Company to furnish at such rate and only on its refusal would a municipal plant be authorized.

The interests of the people as far as we can see would be but subserved by getting together, agreeing upon a smaller light bill if this can possibly be brought about.

I WANT A SEASON TICKET FOR THE CHAUTAUQUA WEEK.

EVERY BODY'S DOING IT!

Chautauqua Next Week.

School children who took their pennies weekly to their teacher in order to be sure of a Junior Chautauqua ticket should exchange the ticket they hold for a regular one to be had by calling at the Commercial Office. Call at once to be ready for Chautauqua next Wednesday.

The little ones have told many interesting accounts of how they saved their pennies for the Junior Chautauqua ticket. One little girl told how she was given nickels for the picture show and how she managed to save enough each week to meet the pennies due for her Chautauqua ticket.

Another little tot with a sweet tooth received a penny at a time for candy and instead of so spending would put away in a box the pennies to carry to school for her Chautauqua ticket.

Some of the little ones earned their pennies by running errands and being busy. Think of a hundred little ones saving week by week the pennies to give themselves the joy of Junior Chautauqua week and that joy is going to be richer and better because of this saving and earning. If there are any grown-ups who doubt this buy a Chautauqua ticket and go out some morning and see the children have a good time. The sight will be worth the price of admission to the big show.

One writing of the Junior Chautauqua as a personal force described it as follows:

"Ask any child what they think of me—the Junior Chautauqua. My very name brings a smile to their lips a song to their hearts. For I am the friend of all children, rich and poor, big and little, I love them all. I play with them, I enrich their lives. I teach them the love of mankind and good citizenship as they should be taught. I am the Play Spirit that is in you all, man, woman or child. I am recreation for you all, body, mind, soul. I want to be your friend, busy mother, tired business man, dignified grown-up. I am calling you to 'come play'."

The Junior Chautauqua doctors are flying through the town. Have you seen them? If not get one and get an idea what the Junior Chautauqua means.

A week full of games That you all like to play And stories you don't want to miss With songs and a play. And a hike some fine day. Now what could be better than this?

Revenue District May be Divided.

It was reported in Lancaster this week that provision has been made in the appropriation bill passed by Congress for the division of the Ninth Internal Revenue District into two districts, thus restoring the old Twelfth District with headquarters at Scranton. While report has not been verified it seems to be generally understood that it was correct.

Sayre L. T. L. Convention.

"Been to Sayre? Where in the world is that?"

"It's a little town up along the New York border," was the reply. "The Lehigh Valley Railroad's town, but it will always bring pleasant memories to me."

Why do you ask? Because she was the delegate to the Senior L. T. L. Convention of the State, who was speaking, and the convention at Sayre was one of the most interesting and inspiring ever held. Adams county, through a series of mishaps, had only one representative, Anna Michener, of Bendersville. She maintains that the rest don't know what they missed.

"Whiskey is licked now," said the Rev. Charles Wesley Burns of Philadelphia, who was elected president of the State L. T. L. twenty-one years ago, and that was the keynote of the convention. Not that the laws are passed but science has shown to the public what liquor really does for the consumer and his neighbors, and whiskey has done the rest for itself. The people of the nation will not allow so harmful an agent to go uncontrolled and uncontrolled through the land.

The brewers themselves are responsible for this statement. In their conventions they anxiously say that only strong organization can meet the rising temperance sentiment. In fact, how could they help confessing that when by their actions they confess the harmful effects of liquor. In many of the larger places they will not keep a bar-tender who takes a drink while on duty. People have been slow to see the lesson of facts, but common sense is triumphing.

Fred Squires of Chicago related the benefits of Woman's Suffrage in Illinois and showed how well it worked. At their first election 90 per cent. of the women voted against liquor, and they have been active in several small political house-cleanings. Perhaps it is not surprising that Pennsylvania legislators are slow to grant the ballot to women.

About one hundred delegates were present from different parts of the State and all brought accounts of the splendid work done, and a great deal of enthusiasm although even they represented scarcely half of the active organizations.

One afternoon was devoted to a discussion of the pledge, as to whether the Senior L. T. L. should take the W. C. T. U. pledge against liquor alone or maintain their present high standard of the triple pledge against alcohol, tobacco, and profanity, and it was the almost unanimous opinion, after a warm discussion, that the triple pledge should be retained. Field sports furnished an enjoyable afternoon for the delegates and a delightful trolley ride the last night made one more good time before old friends and new parted for another year of work.

W. M. Niagara Excursions.

The first excursion ever run to Niagara over the Western Maryland and its new connecting lines occurred on Monday, June 22nd, others now following are on July 27th, August 10th and 24th, September 14th and 28th, and October 12th, the points of departure including this city. The route, which is one of surpassing scenic beauty and grandeur, is by the Western Maryland Railway to Connelleville, Pa., the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad to Pittsburgh and Youngstown, the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern or Erie Railroad to Buffalo and New York Central Lines to Niagara Falls. There will be many unique and attractive features in connection with these excursions, not the least among which will be the extremely low rate at which tickets good for 15 days will be sold. Then again instead of traveling on crowded excursion trains composed of day coaches, they will make the tour in the palatial regular trains of the Western Maryland, with their up-to-date and modern equipment, which includes parlor cars, dining and sleeping cars, together with every other comfort and convenience. Another feature will be that the excursionists will all arrive at Niagara Falls in either the morning or early afternoon, giving those who have not done so in advance, ample opportunity to secure hotel accommodations, etc., before nightfall. Returning the tickets will be good for stop off at Buffalo, Youngstown and Ashtabula, Ohio. These trips will prove most highly attractive as a delightful summer outing, the only cheap feature about them being the low rate fares. Fare from Gettysburg $10.55.

Chatterton's Suicide.

Thomas Chatterton, the poet, was a phenomenal boy. He wrote some remarkable verse for one of his age. He was born in Bristol, England, on Nov. 20, 1752. He went to London to better his opportunities for employment. He did not succeed and lost heart. He became very poor and sometimes for days was compelled to go with little or no food. On Aug. 24 Mrs. Angel, the woman from whom he rented a room, knowing that during three days he had eaten nothing, invited him to dinner. He was offended at her expressions, which seemed to hint that he was in want and assured her that he was not hungry. Withdrawing into his garret at nightfall on the same day and quietly locking himself in death came to him before daybreak on Aug. 25, 1770. When, on his continued nonappearance in the morning the attic door was broken open it was found from the contents of a nearly empty phial still grasped in his hand that he had died from the effects of arsenic.

Relation of City and Country.

With us cities are as certain to spring up with the increase of country population as the forests are to disappear. City and country are organically related. Crops cannot be grown without fields nor exchanged and manufactured under the modern system of division of labor without cities. Only in the rudest pioneer settlements do men dispense with this division of labor by doing everything painfully and badly on the farm. Such settlements are retarded and hampered until they have towns for the city part of the work. When we estimate that the average inhabitant of New York may have but a few square feet for his own use we are apt to forget that he can only exist on them because somewhere in the country there are acres of ground producing for him, as really and definitely for him as if he owned them and hired the labor on them, what Professor Penck has called his "sustenance space."—Atlantic.

Beauty Fashions.

In the days of Roman supremacy the women tinted their eyebrows with black in emulation of "ox eyed Venus." They painted their faces, sprinkled themselves with perfumes and even wore false hair or tinted their own locks in accordance with the prevailing fashion.

The Greek ladies of the same period employed maids who rubbed out their mistress' wrinkles, "decorated" her face with red and white paint and darkened her eyebrows. It was then also the fashion to coat the face with white of egg and goose grease to protect it from the sun and wind. It is even said that they had a recipe for turning blue eyes to black.

These fashions all had their origin in Italy, where in later years the notorious Lucrezia Borgia is said to have dyed her hair different colors, according to her fancy of the moment.

An Ancient Suez Canal.

It is certain that in ancient times a canal connecting the Mediterranean and Red seas did exist. Herodotus ascribes its projection to Pharaoh Necho. 600 B. C. The honor of its completion is given by some to Darius, by others to the Ptolemies. How long this canal continued to be used we do not know, but becoming finally choked up by sand, it was restored by Trajan early in the second century A. D. Becoming again useless from the same cause, it was reopened by the Caliph Omar, but was finally closed by the "unconquerable sands" about A. D. 767, in which state it has since remained. This ancient canal, from Suez to Babasis, on the east branch of the Nile, was ninety-two miles long, from 105 feet to 160 feet wide and fifteen feet deep.

Not Reassuring.

He was so well satisfied with the impression he believed he had made on the young lady that he did not attempt to verify his belief, but boldly tackled his standing with the rest of the family.

"Do you think," he said, "that your worthy father will accept me as a son-in-law?"

"I haven't a doubt of it," said she. "Father and I never agree on anything."—Washington Star.

It Was Hard.

"Have you anything to say before sentence is pronounced against you?" asked the judge.

"The only thing I'm kickin' about," answered the convicted burglar, "is bein' identified by a man that kep' his head under the bedclothes the whole time. That's wrong."—Puck.

How to Make Home Happy.

Presumptive Evidence.

"What made you think Mr. Lovel had been drinking?"

"Why, when the Charlotte russe was set before him he tried to blow off the foam."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Not Exclusive.

Nellie (aged five)—Our family is awfully exclusive. Is yours? Bessie (aged four)—No, indeed! We haven't anything to be ashamed of.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Real Sympathy.

Juror—We acquitted him out of sympathy. Friend—For his aged mother? Juror—Oh, no—for having such a lawyer.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Wonders of Plant Life.

We are told by Darwin in his "Origin of Species" that in the month of February of a certain year he took three tablespoonfuls of mud from three different places beneath the surface of the water of a small pond, which mud weighed only six and three-quarter ounces and was all contained in a breakfast cup. He kept it covered up in his study for six months and during this period obtained from it the astonishing number of 537 plants.

On Nov. 15, 1911, a Scotsman contributor planted a dozen acorns in a patch of soil taken from a hedge root of about twenty-eight inches in length by about eleven inches in width and about two and a half inches deep, and he resolved to take a note of the number of plants which should grow from seed naturally contained in it. By Nov. 15, 1912, he had removed from time to time, as they showed themselves, 155 plants, and by Nov. 15, 1913, fifty-six more, or for the two years 211 plants in all.

A Culinary Experiment.

The friends of a certain distinguished professor frequently dropped into his laboratory for a chat in the evening, says the Boston Herald. Generally, they found him busily engrossed in some experiment.

One evening, when two friends called, they found the professor bending anxiously over a spirit lamp, on which a small pot was bubbling.

"Well," said one of the callers, "what is it tonight?"

"Guess," murmured the professor. "Micrococci?" asked one.

"No."

"Pneumococci?" asked the other.

"No."

"Spirochaetae?"

"No."

The callers ran the scale of micro-organisms as far as they knew it. Then one of them said:

"Well, we give it up! What is it?"

The professor smiled blandly. "Sausages!"

Davy and His Lamp.

Jan. 9, 1816, saw in the depths of an English coal mine near Newcastle a little drama in which there were but two actors—the one a clergyman, the other a miner. The latter was busily picking out the coal by the light of a "steel mill" when he saw approaching him a light. The miner knew the gassy nature of the pit and shouted, "Put out the light!" but no notice was taken even when prayers took the place of oaths. The newcomer was the Rev. John Hodgson, rector of Jarro, and he had in his hand the first Davy safety lamp, now safely housed in the Museum of Practical Geology in Jermyn street, London. Sir Humphry Davy when urged to patent it replied: "It might undoubtedly enable me to put four horses in my carriage. But what could it avail me to have it said that Sir Humphrey drives his carriage and four bought at the expense of miners' lives?"

Tennyson's Terror.

At the time when rumors of the probable marriage of the Marquis of Lorne and Princess Louise were floating about London Tennyson had one day a number of guests at luncheon, among whom was the Marquis of Lorne. In the course of talk the marquis told Tennyson, then poet laureate, that the queen liked his new volume.

"I am glad to hear it," Tennyson said in his sonorous, slow, musical bass voice. "I have given a good account of her in that volume, but the newspapers didn't like my rimes—say they are bad. I live in terror," he continued, "of any of the queen's family marrying and of hearing from her that she hopes I will write something. I have no news of that kind yet, but I live in terror of it."

This with a solemnly sir wink.

Not Necessary to Speak.

No one has ever succeeded in committing John Barrett, chief of the pan-American bureau, as to whether suffrage is right or wrong, but he tells this story apropos of nothing and everything:

Two men were late at the club.

"It's awfully late, Brown. What'll you say to your wife?"

"Not much, old man; just 'Good morning, dear.' She'll say the rest."—New York Tribune.

A Bolsterer.

"How does Hamlet Fast manage to keep in vaunderful?"

"He has a certain value. He's a bolsterer."

"What's a bolsterer?"

"He's so rotten that he makes the rest of any bill look good."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Overdoing it a Little.

"Speaking of economy," says a character in one of Life's stories, "Gillett says that he is saving up for a rainy day."

"It'll" came the response. "His wife thinks he must be saving up for another flood."

Questions Free.

Caller—But you said you wouldn't charge me anything for the little legal question I asked you. Lawyer—I haven't. What I've charged you for is the answer.—Boston Transcript.

The Parson-Lottie.

The Parson—Lottie, don't you know it is wrong to worry your mother so? Little Lottie—Huh, you don't know mamma! She worries me more than I worry her.—Chicago News.

While Denty stands still, Confidence can make a fortune.

A Story of a Brave Girl's Struggle

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The plain was a level whiteness of snow, broken here and there by wandering trails that crossed each other at various angles. At the foot of the mountains the dark blur of pine trees showed against the pale cloak of winter, growing fainter until at the summits the gray clouds came down and all outlines were lost.

At the base of the mountains were scattered cabins of homesteaders. They were many miles apart, and each roughly built house was half hidden under the heavy snowfall.

On a certain March morning Anne Bellew opened the door of her father's house and drew in deep breaths of the clear, cold air. Her cheeks were tingling with the icy contact when she reluctantly closed the door and threw several chunks of wood into the stove.

She moved about the kitchen, a slender, graceful girl of twenty-two with golden brown hair and eyes and a sweet face that now drooped a little sadly in response to her thoughts.

Her father came in to breakfast fresh from his morning ablutions, a big, strong, ruddy looking man with crisp gray hair.

"Some colder, Anne, my dear," he said cheerily as he sat down to the appetizing meal of corn bread and fried bacon with fragrant coffee.

"Yes, dad. I suppose you will go into the forest today."

"No; I shall try to get to Moonston for more supplies. I shall walk, and I can pack the things back by sled. I rather wanted to go over and see what has become of young Wallace. Haven't seen him for a fortnight. I hope the lad isn't ill. He might be, and no one would know it. That's the worst of the Wallace claim; it's the last one of the bunch and on the edge of all creation."

Anne's face lost its lovely color, and her hand trembled as she poured her father a second cup of coffee.

"If Jim Wallace is all alone and sick, why, there is no one to wait upon him, and perhaps he hasn't anything in the house to eat," she said practically.

"That's the worst of it, Anne. Well, I'll make an early start. Where are my snowshoes? Yes, as I was saying, I'll make an early start and try to get home by sundown. If I don't, Anne, you needn't worry. I shall stop at Gillman's for the night."

When the dusk fell Anne placed a lamp in the window, although she did not expect her father to return that night. The storm was increasing in fury, and now the wind was screaming around the house, seeking entrance through some unprotected cranny.

"I wonder—I wonder," was the refrain of Anne's thoughts all through that lonely day—"I wonder if he is all right."

Anne Bellew was not thinking of her father. She knew that he was safely housed at Gillman's, but there was another, Jim Wallace, who had only a year before taken up a claim on the edge of the government tract. Wallace had worked hard clearing his place and had developed from a pale city bred man into a great sun browned pioneer.

She had seen Jim Wallace many times before they met, and after that Jim's wooing had been very short and sweet as well, for Anne loved him. There wouldn't have been any story to write if Anne and Jim had not quarreled one autumn day, and since then three months had passed by without a word spoken between them.

"I wonder—I wonder if Jim is all right," Anne went on thinking, and at last her thoughts found relief in action. It was 7 o'clock when she set forth clad in a suit of her father's clothing, much too large for her, but comfortably warm nevertheless.

Leaving the lamp in the window, she went out into the storm, bending her head to the piercing blast.

Turning northward, she faced the bitter blast, and more than once she was tempted to go back to the warm comfort of the house, but a premonition of danger to Jim Wallace possessed her, and she fought steadily ahead.

It was five miles to the Wallace claim, facing the wind every inch of the way. A man would have suffered readily, but some inward exaltation kept the blood surging through Anne's veins, and her feet stepped out bravely, and her fur gloved hands were as warm as her tender heart.

She was going to Jim Wallace's place to see if he were alive and well, and the last time they had met she had told him she loved him, and he—well, Jim had quoted something about "a woman with a serpent's tongue," which had been the final straw on the camel's back, of her patience.

All at once there came an ominous long drawn cry.

"Wolves!" she shuddered and half hesitated in her tracks.

"He might be sick and helpless," she thought, but, though her courage was nearly gone, she kept on doggedly. The cry was growing louder, and she recognized the cry of a solitary wolf.

"I wonder if it is the watcher," she thought as she stood on. "If it is it means that Jim is in danger. Indian Bill says that the watcher always goes on ahead to spy out victims and that he sits and howls until he draws the full pack. Oh, dear!"

The little feminine cry escaped her unawares, and she closed her lips resolutely and turned into the path of spruces that marked the beginning of the Wallace claim. By going through the spruces she would reach the cabin by a shorter cut and at the same time be sheltered from the fury of the storm.

Ki-ki-ah-a-a-a-ah!

How loud it sounded to Anne's terrified ears!

The animal must be very near the cabin, and where was Jim Wallace that he did not answer with a bullet from his rifle the challenge of the watcher?

Either Jim was away or he was ill, or worse.

Anne walked warily now, slipping noiselessly along the crust of snow, her lantern hidden behind her.

At last she reached the fallen spruce where she had often sat with Jim Wallace.

She strained her eyes in the direction of the cabin and saw nothing save flying flakes that clung moistly to her face.

Nearer she crept and nearer until she made out the dark bulk of the cabin, and against its whiteness at last she descried the dark shape squatting on the doorstep.

The howl suddenly ceased, and there turned toward her two blazing balls of fire.

She crept still nearer and flashed her lantern in the face of the lone watcher. The fiery balls receded as she approached until she gained the doorstep. There she took her stand, waving her lantern in the face of the wolf, who was drawing nearer by imperceptible inches.

Anne put her hand behind her and felt for the doorknob. She turned it, and the door gave a little. She threw her lantern at the eyes. At that instant the lone watcher made his first leap at her and fell short by several feet. Anne darted into the cabin's dark interior and closed the door on the muzzle of her revolver just as the wolf made his second leap.

His impact against the door, the flash of fire and the report of the weapon all sounded together and were instantly followed by a howl of pain and a dull thud on the crust of snow outside.

Anne slammed the door shut and bolted it.

Far away, but drawing nearer, was the sound of a wolf pack in full cry.

All at once Anne fell to sobbing softly.

A groan came from the corner of the dark room.

"Who is there?" somebody whispered.

Dazed the Crank.

David P. Barrows, while acting president of the University of California, one day received a queer visitor. Lenn and terribly earnest, the man broke into Barrows' study.

"I am the prophet Micah," he announced, "and I have a need for your service. The world is soon to come to an end. Could you not spread the tidings through the university?"

Dr. Barrows shook his visitor by the hand, collected his thoughts and replied: "I believe that at no time was there such a crying need for prophets. But, unfortunately, prophesying is an art with which I am unfamiliar. I am not even in close sympathy with it and as I am unable to comprehend what you have accomplished, I confess inability to participate as a prognosticator."

Whether it was the unexpected reply or the quick fire of so many words that dazed the visitor will never be known. Certain it is the man backed to the door and uttered the inadequate reply, "Yes."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Gentlemen of Leisure.

One of the upper ten thousand, once visiting America, accepted the hospitality of a gentleman in New York. When taking farewell of his host the latter asked him what he thought of the American people.

"Well," answered the nobleman. "I like them immensely, but I miss something."

"What is that?" asked the Yankee.

"I miss the aristocracy," replied the Englishman.

"What are they?" naively asked his host.

"The aristocracy!" said the nobleman in a somewhat surprised tone of voice. "Why, they are people who do nothing, you know; whose fathers did nothing, you know; whose grandfathers did nothing, you know—in fact, the aristocracy."

Here he was interrupted by the American, who chimed in with, "Oh, we've plenty of them over here, but we don't call them aristocracy—we call them tramps."—Exchange.

Washington's Only Joke.

The only admirable quality in which Washington was deficient was humor. One of the very few jests he ever made—perhaps the only one—has descended to posterity on the authority of his aid-de-camp, Colonel Humphreys.

General Washington rather prided himself on his riding, so the colonel one day when they were out hunting together dared him to follow over one particular hedge. The challenge was accepted, and Humphreys led the way. He took the leap boldly, but to his consternation found that he had mistaken the spot and was sunk up to his horse's girth in a quagmire. The general either knew the ground better or had suspected something, for, following at an easy pace, he reined up at the hedge and, looking over at his engulfed aid, exclaimed, "No, no, colonel, you are too deep for me!"

Massaged With Nettles.

Nettles are said to be an almost certain proof that man has lived on the spot. One British species, the so-called Roman nettle, is said to be found only where the Romans have been. Coles, the seventeenth century herbalist, explains, "It grows both at the town of Jiddle, by Romney, and in the streets of the town of Romney, in Kent, where Julius Caesar landed, with his soldiers, and above there a certain time, and for the growing of it in that place it is reported that the soldiers brought some of the seeds with them and sowed it there for their use to rub and chafe their limbs when through extreme cold they should be stiff and benumbed, being told before they came from home that the climate of Britain was so extreme cold it was not to be endured without some friction."

Tale of the Iron Duke.

The Duke of Wellington, if he did not confer commissions in the army upon little boys, went one better in the way of promise. It is Grant Duff who tells the tale in his diary. "Dined with the Spencer Walpoles. She told a story of playing as a child in the gardens of Aspley house. The old duke came out, and the children stood in a row while he passed. He stopped and said to one of them: 'You are a very nice little fellow. When you are old enough I will give you a commission in the guards.' But I am a girl, Mr. Duke," said the child."

Not a Magnet.

"Let me stir the old songs in your 'parlor,'" begged the girl who thought she was a prima donna.

"Please don't," begged the landlady.

"But your boarders will be carried away by my singing."

"That's just the trouble. The last time you sang they were carried over to the next boarding house."—National Monthly.

Poured.

"I have poured every day this week at some function or other," remarked the vivacious girl.

"Well, well," murmured the old gentleman who overheard her. "Now I know what is meant by the term 'a reigning belle'."—St. Louis Republic.

Frank About It.

Shoe Store Salesman—What size would you like, madam. Miss Loring—I'd like a No. 2, but there's no use talking about that. You may as well show me your No. 7s.—London Telegraph.

No Recall For Him.

Mike—No you believe in the recall of judges, Pat? Pat—That I do not. The last time I was up before his honor he said: "I recall that fine, sixty days." I'm again the recall of judges.—Life.

Breeding Flies at Home.

"Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth."

For several years past the campaign against the fly has been waged with unceasing vigor until the majority of us have come to realize how dangerous this disgusting little insect may be.

Decency and health demand that it be abolished and whoever is responsible for the toleration of its breeding places is a public enemy. However, before you criticize your neighbor make a tour of your own back yard. Of course your garbage can is properly provided with a lid? No. Well, sanitation begins at home. Seek no further until this is remedied for here is the source of much of your trouble.

Uncovered garbage cans and makeshift substitutes are the breeding places for millions upon millions of flies during the summer months. Where the prompt removal of this kitchen refuse is impossible it should be kept in a tightly closed receptacle. A little kerosene poured over it every day or so will prevent the flies from breeding.

There are many other breeding grounds—dirty stables, unsanitary out houses, etc., but none more common than the uncovered garbage can. One screened manure pit will do more to exterminate flies than a car load of swatters, no matter how enthusiastically wielded.

Do your share in the work of destroying these dangerous pests by cleaning out their breeding places.

Where is Europe?

The man who motors from London to Brighton would never dream of telling his friends next week that he had spent the holiday motoring in Europe. But the man who motored from Calais to Boulogne would.

Europe doesn't mean England to the average man. Try it on him and see. Europe he conceives only as the continent.

The Scilly islanders are much the same. They greet newcomers with inquiries as to affairs in England. I have known old country folk in the Isle of Wight speak in the same way, and the people of the marsh country at the back of Dungeness used to and may even now regard themselves as extra territorial. They were the marshmen; other people were foreigners and Englishmen.—London Mirror.

Ancient Eggs and Jokes.

Bad news and ditto eggs had best be broken gently.—Philadelphia Ledger.

When Luke McLuke wrote it two years ago it read, "Bad news and bad eggs should be broken gently."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Just so! And when we wrote it four years ago it ran thus: "How do you tell a bad egg? If I have anything to tell a bad egg I break it gently."—Boston Transcript.

Don't get excited, gentlemen. The thing had whiskers when Noah was a boy.—Bideford Journal.

Not so; it was a female egg. And as the Argus remarked away back in 1893, "News dropped to a woman is like a bad egg—everybody will soon know it, broken ever so gently."—Portland Eastern Argus.

Nothing Heroic About Him.

She was very romantic, and when she saw the scars on his face she jumped at conclusions.

"I think I have discovered your secret," she softly said. "You are a Heidelberg duelist and likewise a German baron."

"I am not a baron," he said. "and I never heard of Heidelberg. I'm only the fellow the students practice on at the barbers' college."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In a Dilemma.

One of London's charming young suffragettes said: "I want to get married just to prove that I can, and I don't want to get married just to prove that I don't have to. If I don't they'll say I can't; if I do they'll say I have no more independence than any other woman."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Improved.

"How do you like your alarm clock?" asked the jeweler.

"First rate."

"You didn't seem pleased with it at first."

"No, but it's broken now."—London Tit-Bits.

Truthful.

"I hadn't been talking with him three minutes before he called me an ass. What sort of a person is he?"

"Well, I never knew him to tell a lie."

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
